"An HYMN to the EVENING"

By Phillis Wheatley

Transcription, correction, editorial commentary, and markup by Students of Marymount University, James West, Amy Ridderhof

An HYMN to the EVENING.

- 1 SOON as the sun forsook the eastern main
- ² The pealing thunder shook the heav'nly plain;
- ³ Majestic grandeur! From the zephyr's wing,
- ⁴ Exhales the incense of the blooming spring.
- ⁵ Soft purl the streams, the birds renew their notes,
- ⁶ And through the air their mingled music floats.
- 7 Through all the heav'ns what beauteous dies are spread!
- ⁸ But the west glories in the deepest red:
- 9 So may our breasts with ev'ry virtue glow,
- ¹⁰ The living temples of our God below!
- ¹¹ Fill'd with the praise of him who gives the light,
- 12 And draws the sable curtains of the night,

- 59 -

- 13 Let placid slumbers sooth each weary mind,
- 14 At morn to wake more heav'nly, more refin'd,
- 15 So shall the labours of the day begin
- ¹⁶ More pure, more guarded from the snares of sin.
- 17 Night's leaden sceptre seals my drowsy eyes,
- 18 Then cease, my song, till fair Aurora rise.